Choose quality

We are one of the north of England's largest and oldest home improvement firms – established in 1971.

Our family-owned and run business prides itself on quality manufacturing processes, expert fitting, and superb customer care.

Employing over 300 staff, we are trusted and recognised throughout the UK, and customers have peace of mind in dealing with a long-standing business whose ethos is providing exceptional quality and service.

Benefits of growing your home

Extending your home is a popular way to create additional living space without having to move

We have a choice of flat-roof single-storey extensions, orangeries, or choose from our updated range of energy efficient conservatories with solid insulated roofs.

These can all be tailored to your bespoke design, with a choice of either bi-fold, French, or sliding doors.

We manufacture in both UPVC and aluminium, with a variety of colour choices available, for a truly individual design.

If you're thinking of moving home, you may find it makes more financial sense to build a decent extension – instead of wasting money on estates agents, stamp duty and solicitor's fees.

Planning permission

In most cases planning permission is not necessary because an extension or conservatory is an addition which is classed as being a 'permitted development right' under UK law.

Before confirming any final conservatory costs and embarking on the building project, we will check this for you with the relevant authority, and then deal with all the necessary planning permission and paperwork to make sure it is a stress-free process for you. With a range of flexible and affordable finance packages available when you buy a new conservatory - including the option to buy now and pay nothing for nine months, we make it easy to transform your home.

HOME EXTENSIONS

Improve the functionality of your home and fall in love with it all over again by adding a beautiful single-storey extension with a choice of roof and door options.

If you have a growing family and are tight on space, add an EYG home extension and benefit from an extra room to use as a living room, kitchen, or even bedroom. Adding a single-storey side or rear extension will not only vastly increase the square footage of your home, it will also add value to your property, making it a solid investment.

For a traditional extension full of character, opt for a sloped tiled roof and blend it seamlessly into your existing property. If you prefer a more modern twist, we can add far more than just extra space – we'll also raise the wow factor by incorporating some stunning flat roof lights or a stylish Skypod into your design.

A fantastic addition to any home

We employ extension builders in Hull, Leeds, Scarborough, Doncaster, Lincoln, Spalding, Nottingham and further afield – and our extensive team of qualified in-house tradesmen carry out all our installations.

Step 1: A design specialist will visit your home and tailor a free no-obligation quote to your exact requirements.

Step 2: Once the design is finalised and you're happy with the price, we'll arrange a payment plan, a suitable start date and conduct an expert survey

Step 3: Your bespoke design is handmade in our 65,000sqft UK manufacturing facility.

Step 4: On the pre-agreed installation day, we'll turn your home improvement dream into a reality.

Step 5: Sit back, relax and enjoy your investment with a ten-year EYG warranty for complete peace of mind.

ORANGERIES

An orangery extension is a stylish way to add luxurious extra living space to any home. Designed to combine brick walls and pillars with glass, light-filled orangeries are comfortable for year-round use.

If you want your new living space to look like a seamless extension of your home, an orangery could be the ideal installation for your home. Orangeries tend to include more brickwork and less glazing compared to a conservatory. This provides extra privacy and is commonly chosen by homeowners wanting to use their space throughout the year.

“I was amazed, it blew me away”

Mary Blair contacted EYG after moving into her newbuild home in Yorkshire and realising she did not have enough space to host dinners for family and friends.

Her home did not have a designated area big enough for a large table and chairs, and therefore she decided to extend with an orangery.

She asked for an orangery with a solid tiled roof, which would keep a nice pleasant temperature all year round.

“I get a lot of comments about the orangery, everyone says how nice it looks,”

“The guys who constructed it were amazing. I was dreading it, thinking I’d have a big hole in the garden for months and there would be problems and delays. But it all worked like clockwork, I was amazed, it blew me away.”

- Mrs Blair, East Yorkshire

Edwardian

Add a touch of elegance to your home with an Edwardian conservatory – ideal for maximising the floor space in both modern and period properties.

Edwardian conservatories are symmetrical and often square or rectangular, and traditionally include large glass panels which create very light and airy rooms which are flooded with natural light. The Edwardian style allows you to maximise your enjoyment and usage of the extra space created.

The Edwardian style is perfectly suited to either a glass roof or solid tiled roof, or create your own 'hybrid' roof which is largely solid but has occasional glass panels which allows you to have a room that maintains a regular temperature, while still enjoying the benefits of creating a light-filled space to enjoy.

Add a whole new room

Victorian

If you want a Victorian look for a period home, then we have a beautiful selection of Victorian conservatories featuring ornate cresting and finials.

The ornate look is very popular with owners of period properties who want to build a conservatory which is in keeping with their home and street scene. The Victorian conservatory is one of the most traditional you can buy, and has a stunning bay front with a pitched roof, allowing plenty of natural light and creating an airy, sunny space.

Once you have chosen a Victorian dwarf wall conservatory design to suit your property and lifestyle, you can choose from our wide range of interior and exterior finishes which will allow you to create your own bespoke space

Gable end

A gable end conservatory has a roof that stands upright like the end of a house, instead of sloping inwards towards the centre of the room. This gives it a very appealing look from both inside and out, creating extra height from inside the conservatory but also giving the impression of grandeur from the outside.

This style works well with period homes, having the look and feel of an old-style orangery which was popular in magnificent country houses of old.

Our gable end conservatories create lots of extra useable space which can be utilised as a traditional garden room to sit and relax in, a dining room, living room, office or extra play space for little ones. The choice is yours.

Perfect for larger homes

Lean to

A lean to conservatory remains one of our best sellers - offering a contemporary look for the rear of any property and acting as a quick, easy and cheaper alternative to a traditional brick home extension.

A design classic and probably the most cost-effective way to add another room to your home, the lean-to conservatory can have either a polycarbonate, glass or tiled conservatory roof.

Whether you want to use the space as a garden room, dining room, play room, home office or extra living room for everyone to enjoy, its simple rectangular shape will ensure that you can use every inch of available floor space. A sensible but stylish option when a small conservatory is required.

Perfect for smaller homes

P shaped

Ideal for detached houses and larger homes, the P-shaped conservatory is guaranteed to add a feeling of luxury and grandeur. The P-shape combines both a lean to conservatory with a Victorian style and can have three or five sides, depending on the size of the house. The P-shaped conservatory can vary in size, and be finished with a style of doors including patio, French or bifold doors and any solid, tiled, glass or hybrid conservatory roof.

Constructed by combining the best elements of a lean-to conservatory and a Victorian conservatory, the 'P' shape it creates is very spacious. Because the P-shaped conservatory extends in several different directions, it can be used for a combination of purposes and is particularly popular with families who want a combined dining area and living space.

INSTALLER
AWARDS Winner 2023

“We are delighted with the finished conservatory, the EYG team were also brilliant throughout.”

- Mr Kendrew, East Yorkshire

Award winning installation

EYG has been named “Conservatory Installer of the year” in a national awards ceremony, run by prestigious industry magazine GGP. The award recognised our work in a difficult and traumatic situation, in coming to the rescue of a couple who’d lost thousands of pounds to two different building firms.

After losing £11,000 in deposits to two firms that went bust, customer Mr Kendrew called EYG to step in and rescue his home extension plan. He felt more confident in dealing with a business that was established over 50 years ago.

We had a depleted budget to achieve their dream plan, therefore we recommended a new conservatory which was cheaper than a brick-built extension. We suggested an insulated Hybrid roof – which had alternating solid and glass panels - along with insulated walls and flooring as well, which all combined to give the look and feel of an extension, with the same thermal efficiency.

The judges described the project as “outstanding”.

“We have no hesitation in recommending EYG to anyone.”

Garage Conversions

Garage conversions provide a relatively cheap and easy solution if you want to gain a considerable amount of new entertaining or living space without building a new home extension from scratch.

Much more affordable than a traditional extension, a garage conversion turns a cold and under-utilised area into a warm and habitable room. If your house has a double length garage, we can also carry out a 'part conversion' where either the front or rear is retained as a storage area whilst the rest is converted.

Converting a garage into another room is a great way to create a new bedroom, dining room, family room, gym, home cinema, office, kitchen or playroom. Having gained a reputation for top quality home improvements, EYC's garage conversions are project managed by an expert team with decades of experience in the home improvement industry.
